Q4 2025 Fund Commentary

Commentary and opinions are provided by Northcape Capital.

Market commentary

December closed 2025 with the expectation of monetary policy easing continuing in the U.S. and parts of Europe. In contrast, Japan tightened its monetary policy. Emerging-market equities rose, mostly because of a weaker U.S. dollar. Several large emerging markets also benefited from disinflation trends even as growth held up.

Performance

Relative exposure to Samsung Electronics Co. Ltd. and SK Hynix Inc. contributed to the Fund's performance. Samsung Electronics saw rising demand and higher prices for its semiconductor memory chips because of artificial intelligence (AI). SK Hynix saw higher demand for its high-bandwidth memory, which is used in AI servers.

Relative exposure to Coway Co. Ltd. and MercadoLibre Inc. detracted from the Fund's performance. Coway's stock dipped following strong performance over the previous 18 months. There was no company-specific news. MercadoLibre saw competition from Amazon.com Inc., which increased its investments in Brazil.

At a sector level, security selection in the communication services and information technology sectors contributed to the Fund's performance. Overweight exposure to the consumer staples sector detracted from performance. At a regional level, underweight exposure to China and overweight exposure to South Korea contributed to performance.

Portfolio activity

The sub-advisor reduced the Fund's exposure to South Korea's semiconductor industry to take profits. The proceeds were invested in several stocks in the emerging markets' communication services, health care and financials sectors.

Outlook

The sub-advisor didn't make any changes to the Fund's strategic positioning. Overall, the Fund was focused on what the sub-advisor considers structural growth companies. These companies tend to have high-quality environmental, social and governance characteristics, as well as what the sub-advisor considers defensible business models and balance-sheet strength.
