Q1 2026 Fund Commentary

Commentary and opinions are provided by Beutel, Goodman & Company Ltd..

Market commentary

The first quarter of 2026 started with volatility across global equity and fixed income markets. Conflict in the Middle East escalated in late February, pushing energy prices sharply higher and raising inflation concerns. Canadian equities gained roughly 3.9% during the quarter, while U.S. equities declined roughly 2.6% in Canadian-dollar terms. Canadian investment-grade bonds returned roughly 0.23%, as rising yields late in the quarter offset earlier gains.

Performance

Within the Canadian equity sleeve, an underweight allocation to the information technology sector and selection within the financials sector contributed to performance. Within the U.S. equity sleeve, overweight allocation and selection in the industrials sector and selection within the consumer discretionary sector contributed to performance. Within the fixed income sleeve, duration positioning added slightly, and a mid-curve overweight contributed as that part of the yield curve outperformed. Government and corporate bond selection was roughly neutral.

Suncor Energy Inc. contributed to performance because of solid fundamentals and rising oil prices. Canadian Natural Resources Limited also contributed to performance for similar reasons. Nutrien Ltd. contributed to performance because nitrogen fertilizer pricing surged after supply disruptions restricted shipments through the Strait of Hormuz.

Within the Canadian equity sleeve, an underweight allocation to the energy sector and overweight allocation and selection within the industrials sector detracted from performance. Within the U.S. equity sleeve, overweight allocation and selection within the consumer staples sector and a zero-weight allocation to the energy sector detracted from performance. Within the fixed income sleeve, sector allocation detracted as an overweight to corporate bonds underperformed during the period.

Gen Digital Inc. detracted from performance because of growing artificial intelligence (AI) disruption concerns across the software sector. CGI Inc. detracted from performance because of muted organic growth and negative sentiment around AI's impact on information technology consulting. Qualcomm Incorporated detracted from performance because of a weaker near-term handset outlook, though the sub-advisor believes the company's automotive and data centre businesses could provide longer-term growth.

Portfolio activity

Within the equity sleeve, the sub-advisor added Gildan Activewear Inc., Union Pacific Corporation, Sysco Corporation, Wells Fargo & Company, Becton Dickinson and Company and Marsh & McLennan Companies Inc. The sub-advisor also increased Boyd Group Services Inc., Brookfield Asset Management Ltd., Canadian Apartment Properties Real Estate Investment Trust, Colliers International Group Inc., Element Fleet Management Corp., NetApp Inc., Amdocs Limited, Qualcomm Incorporated and Elevance Health Inc.

The sub-advisor sold Harley-Davidson Inc., Campbell's Company and Versant Media Inc. The sub-advisor also reduced Bank of Montreal, Canadian Natural Resources Limited, Franco-Nevada Corporation, Nutrien Ltd., TC Energy Corporation, RB Global Inc., Amgen Inc., Kimberly-Clark Corporation, Applied Materials Inc., Omnicom Group Inc., Merck & Co. Inc., Ameriprise Financial Inc., Gen Digital Inc., American Express Company, The Carlyle Group Inc. and Chubb Limited.

Outlook

The sub-advisor believes ongoing geopolitical and trade uncertainty will continue to impact equity markets. Commodity prices may remain supportive for the Canadian market. The sub-advisor continues to focus on high-quality businesses purchased at reasonable valuations.

Within the fixed income sleeve, the sub-advisor believes the environment has become increasingly complex and volatile. The Middle East conflict, renewed inflation uncertainty and elevated energy prices could weigh on fixed income markets. The sub-advisor's positioning balances caution with flexibility to respond as conditions evolve.
