Q3 2025 Fund Commentary

Market commentary

Canadian equities rose in the third quarter of 2025 despite trade uncertainty and geopolitical risks in the Middle East. The S&P/TSX Composite Total Return Index rose 12.5%, reaching a new all-time high. Top-performing sectors included materials, information technology and energy. The weakest sector performers were industrials, consumer staples and consumer discretionary.

Within materials, rising commodity prices drove gains for gold producers and copper producers. In information technology, Canadian stocks were volatile but positive amid enthusiasm for artificial intelligence. In energy, producers, infrastructure and services were strong despite crude oil and natural gas pricing volatility.

The industrials sector underperformed because of weakness in Canadian railways. Consumer-oriented sectors were affected by trade tensions and tariff concerns.

Performance

The Fund's relative exposure to Franco-Nevada Corp., Constellation Software Inc. and Open Text Corp. contributed to performance. The Fund held overweight exposure to Franco-Nevada and Open Text, and underweight exposure to Constellation Software. An overweight exposure to Canadian National Railway Co. and underweight exposure to Shopify Inc. detracted from performance. A lack of ownership in Barrick Gold Corp. also detracted from performance.

At the sector level, stock selection within financials, consumer staples and real estate contributed to performance, as did underweight exposure to financials. Security selection within materials and energy detracted from performance, as did underweight exposure to materials and overweight exposure to industrials.

Portfolio activity

The sub-advisor added EQB Inc., taking advantage of share price weakness, for its capital discipline and asset-light business model. The sub-advisor added to Canadian National because of share price weakness. Manulife Financial Corp. was increased because the sub-advisor is encouraged by the company's high return on equity and increasing targets.

Parkland Corp. and TELUS International (CDA) Inc. were sold as both companies are being acquired. ATCO Ltd. was sold after strong price performance. The sub-advisor prefers to hold ATCO's subsidiary Canadian Utilities Ltd. instead based on its valuation. Saputo Inc. was reduced after recent share price appreciation.

Outlook

The sub-advisor seeks stocks that emphasize predictability while maintaining reasonable valuations. The sub-advisor's investment process is oriented towards identifying and capitalizing on market inefficiencies, with a consistent focus on delivering strong, risk-adjusted returns over the long term.
