Q3 2025 Fund Commentary

Market commentary

Global equities gained in the third quarter of 2025. Artificial intelligence (AI) was a main theme, powering equity gains in select large-capitalization information technology stocks. AI also boosted other sectors and industries.

Performance

The Fund's relative exposure to Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing Co. Ltd., Samsung Electronics Co. Ltd. and CRH PLC contributed to performance. Relative exposure to Kenvue Inc., American Tower Corp. and Coloplast AS detracted from performance.

At the sector level, underweight exposure to consumer staples and overweight exposure to materials contributed to performance. Stock selection within health care and utilities detracted from performance.

Portfolio activity

The sub-advisor added Gaztransport & Technigaz SA and UnitedHealth Group Inc. and sold Diageo PLC during the quarter.

Outlook

The sub-advisor looks to invest in attractively valued companies and is not driven by macroeconomic events. The sub-advisor doesn't include any macroeconomic forecasting in the search or selection process. The sub-advisor looks for companies with both capacity and commitment to pay dividends, including a sustainable payout ratio. As such, the Fund is biased toward high-yield sectors and regions.
