Q3 2025 Fund Commentary

Market commentary

Following disruption caused by U.S. tariffs in the second quarter of 2025, the global economy adjusted to the new trade environment during the third quarter.

The S&P/TSX Composite Index rose 12.5%, the S&P 500 Index (in Canadian dollars) rose 10.3%, and the MSCI EAFE Index rose 6.8% (in Canadian dollars). The FTSE Canada Universe Bond Index was up 1.51%.

While Canadian exports declined, Canadian equities rose to record highs. U.S. equities, measured by the S&P 500 Index, reached new highs, with growth stocks leading, fueled by artificial intelligence (AI) investment.

The European Central Bank maintained its 2% deposit rate in September and raised projections for gross domestic product (GDP) growth to 1.2% for 2025. The Bank of Japan also left interest rates unchanged in September.

Performance

The Fund's relative exposure to eBay Inc., Cummins Inc. and NetApp Inc. contributed to performance. eBay released positive earnings results, with revenue up 6% and merchandise volume up 4%, driven by its U.S. business, which was not affected by tariffs. Cummins posted positive earnings despite challenges in the trucking industry, because of profitability in its power systems and distribution segments. NetApp reported results in line with forecasts on revenue, margins and earnings per share.

Relative exposure to Elevance Health Inc., Comcast Corp. and Amdocs Ltd. detracted from performance. Elevance reported that higher medical cost trends for both Medicaid and the Affordable Care Act in the U.S. will affect its margins in 2025. Comcast was affected by the highly competitive media environment, reporting earnings down 1% in residential broadband and 31% for studios. Despite positive results, Amdocs investors were focused on its AI capabilities, which are not yet a key part of the business.

At a sector level, stock selection in Canadian financials, communication services and utilities contributed to performance, as did selection among the U.S. consumer discretionary and industrials sectors contributed to performance. Selection among international equities in the health care and consumer discretionary sectors.

Stock selection and underweight exposure to Canadian materials stocks detracted from performance as the price of gold rose. Stock selection in Canadian consumer staples and information technology detracted from performance, as did overweight exposure to consumer staples and industrials.

In U.S. equities, selection and underweight exposure to information technology detracted from performance, as did selection in communication services, materials, health care and financials. Overweight exposure to health care and financials also detracted from performance.

Among international equities, selection in information technology, consumer staples, materials and financials detracted from performance, as did underweight exposure to financials.

Within fixed income, overweight exposure to the 10-year part of the yield curve contributed to performance, as did overweight exposure to corporate bonds. Corporate bond selection within hybrid securities and high-yield bonds contributed to performance as did overweight exposure to energy sector bonds.

Portfolio activity

The sub-advisor added Canadian Apartment Properties REIT for its track record of maximizing occupancy and mark-to-market rent opportunities that should drive margin expansion. Alimentation Couche-Tard Inc., Boyd Group Services Inc., CGI Inc., Element Fleet Management Corp., Tourmaline Oil Corp., Chubb Ltd., PPG Industries Inc., Compagnie Generale des Etablissements Michelin and Essity AB were increased. . CAE Inc., Royal Bank of Canada, RB Global Inc., The Toronto-Dominion Bank, eBay Inc. and Smith & Nephew PLC were reduced.

Outlook

Amid trade uncertainty, global GDP growth is projected to slow to 3.2% in 2025 and 2.9% in 2026. These projections include economic declines in both the U.S. and China, and to a lesser extent in the European Union.

The outperformance of international equities over U.S. equities has been a notable feature of 2025. This was impressive in a positive year for U.S. equities, particularly those benefiting from AI investment. The S&P 500 Index's growth was mostly AI-related, which has led to higher concentration risk, but is less of an issue with international indices.

The sub-advisor believes interest rates will decline over the medium term, particularly in Canada, and anticipates a steepening of the yield curve. The Fund has overweight exposure to the middle of the yield curve, which has historically performed best during steepening environments.

The Fund is positioned defensively, holding higher-rated credit with a bias towards less cyclical sectors. Should credit spreads widen, this could create opportunities to add higher-beta credit. The Fund's holdings of investment-grade and high-yield credits are concentrated in shorter-term maturities.
